New zoning officer for Dennison Township

by Ruth Isenberg

During the reorganization meeting January 4, Dennison Township supervisors named a new zoning officer. Carl Faust was named to the post previously held by Keith Wheeler. He will be paid $500 per month.

Most other posts remained the same. Sheila Weaver will be chair this year, with Mike Mack as vice-chair. One previous planning commission member no longer lives in the township, and supervisor Bruce Thomas refused to be reappointed, so the supervisors decided to lower the size of the board to five. Mack was appointed to a four-year term.

During the regular meeting that followed reorganization, supervisors discussed complaints received from residents of Glen Oaks about trees and debris in the creek. Residents were looking for help to clear the stream, but no government entities will remove the material from the stream, which is in a private development. DEP will send a permit application to allow residents to use machinery to do it themselves, at their own expense.

Auditing services of $6,000 plus expenses from Mark Yanus was accepted.

The supervisors voted to pay off the loan taken out to renovate the township building. Interest on the loan was 4%, higher than the 1% interest township funds are earning in the PLIGIT account.

Bill Bauersfeld presented the Dennison Township Volunteer Fire Company report, listing three calls for the month, for 8.75 service hours, 18 training hours, and 4 maintenance hours. For 2015, the fire company responded to 70 calls.

SNOW WAS THE STORY of the week, as Winter Storm Jonas took over the area on Saturday. We didn't receive nearly as much snow as our neighbors in the Lehigh Valley, but Weatherly, shown above, totalled about a foot. White Haven's accumulation was less, closer to 8 inches. Snow removal went on for several days in both communities.

Income tax time is tough enough, with assembling paperwork, fathoming forms, and finally paying. The last year or two, there's been an additional hassle. Scammers have decided taxpayers make good targets.

IRS spokespeople are clear. The IRS will not phone you and demand money—particularly not in the form of a money order or pre-paid card. The IRS issues written notifications, and gives people time to pay amounts they owe. There are appeal processes, and many steps along the way before the agency can seize property.

If you get a call from someone claiming to be an IRS agent, and demanding money, do not panic. Do not give out any information, especially social security number or bank account. The best response is to hang up, then report the call, either at www.irs.gov or by calling 800-366-4484.

For that matter, don't give that information out to anyone who calls on the phone, or sends a threatening e-mail. Legitimate businesses respect their customers, even when they are having trouble paying, and try to work with them. They do not ask for payments that cannot be tracked.

Don't fall for a scammer who is out to steal from you. And if you realize that you have been scammed, make a police report. It isn't easy to catch these crooks, as many are operating from overseas. But going public serves as a warning to others, and may help prevent others from being scammed.

Letters to the Editor Policy

Topics of local interest are preferred, and form letters will not be published. Preference will be given to letters sent exclusively to this publication. Letters should be no longer than 300 words. The Editor reserves the right to edit for clarity. Letters which could be considered slander or libel will not be published, nor will personal attacks.

John Lemich, proprietor of Lemich Motors on Church Street in White Haven, resigned as mayor of White Haven borough in a letter sent on January 15 due to personal business matters. He was elected in 1981 to a four year term which would have ended at the end of this year.

A temporary solution was made to the White Haven Municipal Authority's turbidity problem at the Linesville Reservoir. WHMA engineer Ron Sturgeon reported that he, employees David Quinn and Leroy Carter, and authority member Jim Wood used Wood's wrecker to stretch a cable across the reservoir, then went out in a boat to replace a new 8" intake pipe. The pipe that was removed was badly clogged.

Carbon County Judge John P. Lavelle recommended to the State Supreme Court that Magisterial District 3-4 covering the Weatherly and Beaver Meadows areas be retained. The Supreme Court had advocated elimination of one magisterial district in the county. District Judge Andrew Moisey retired this past June, and his office in Beaver Meadows was closed. The area was supposed to go to Jim Thorpe for magisterial services, but the municipalities objected. Lavelle then ordered the District Judge from Lansford to hold office hours in Beaver Meadows on Tuesday and Thursday of each week. A decision is expected to be made soon because if the district is kept, there would need to be an election this year.

The Rev. Connell A. McHugh was named to be the new pastor of Saint Patrick's Church in White Haven by Bishop James Timlin of the Scranton Diocese. McHugh was an assistant pastor at St. Francis of Assisi Church in West Hazleton.

The White Haven Youth group, facing disbanding, may yet reorganize. Some adults have stepped forward to be advisors, and there is new interest from new members.

The 1985 Chevrolet Caprice is advertised for only $11,295 (plus tax and tags) for a 4-door, V8 with automatic transmission... 7 in stock at Fairway Motors on Route 309 north in Hazleton.

High Elevations on Route 940 is serving dinners nightly from 4 to 10:30 p.m., and lunch from noon to 4 on week-ends.

Crestwood High School's students raised $263 for African Famine Relief and gave that money to the Wyoming Valley Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Todd Zimmerman of Penn Lake is the Northeast PA Foul Shooting Champ. He will advance to the Elks National Free Throw "Hoop Shoot" Contest this March. Todd represented the Freeland Elks Lodge 1145, and won the 10-11 year-old boys championship on January 19 in Lansford. Brian Carter, also of Penn Lake, finished third in the contest. Both Todd and Brian are members of the White Haven Aces basketball program.

Keener's Plumbing and Heating of Weatherly is offering a sale on new tub and shower units.

From The Weatherly Herald January 28, 1965

Justin McCarthy of Weatherly won the Wycoff (Department Store) top prize at their 28th annual art show in Stroudsburg. The show had 16 artists, submitting over 250 entries. The art depicts an aerial view of the Delaware Water Gap as the artist sees it "in bright new colors."

Professor R. R. Rahn of the local high school has purchased the orchard and farm tract in the southeastern part of Weatherly from the E. R. Warner estate. Some of the choicest fruit raised in the community came from this orchard — which was a special hobby of Mr. Warner's.

Weatherly's gold-headed honor cane held by the community's oldest male resident since 1928 by Lewis Young, passes upon his death to Henry Schaefer. The custom originated by J. F. Kressley in 1907 when he bought the cane from jeweler G. W. Miller, Jr. of Weatherly.

Letter to the Editor

EDITOR:

With a sincere Thank You, the White Haven Community Library would like to thank all the Artisans, Volunteers and Attendees who helped make our Quilt Show an enjoyable and successful Fundraiser for our non-profit Library.

The weather was sunny and warm for December, which helped to raise the attendance to the highest yet, for this event.

Our quilts were a beautiful addition to the Victorian backdrop of the event house supplied to us by Terry & Trish Kimmey. We thank them and the Library members, local individuals and the Quilterie, in Effort, Pa., who supplied the beautiful, one of a kind quilts.

Not to be forgotten, we are so grateful, to the hard working Library Volunteers who always go above and beyond to make our events successful.

We appreciate the donation of their time, homemade baked goods and handmade items, that added to the success of our event.

We are proud of our Library and its history, being a dying breed of disappearing Engine houses.

Since we are a non-profit, we rely on Grants, Donations and Fundraising to further our cause to finish our Engine House, while providing a place that the Community can use and be proud of.

Our major goal for 2016, is to finish our Community Room to offer a gathering place for meetings, get togethers, etc. for the public. With that in mind, we are hosting a "Hops & Grapes" event on April 30th, 2016, at St. Patrick's Church in White Haven. Watch for upcoming ads. Also, we presently have Collectable Ornaments for sale, that depict the engine house on one side, and a description of its history on the back. In addition, for the Rail enthusiasts, there are also Engineer hats with our one of a kind patches with our logo on the front. Either item is for sale at the library. See a volunteer at the front desk to purchase either item.

If you can, stop by to see our progress and displays of local memorabilia. Again, Thank You for your continued support!

Three Cheers for Bacon Cheeseburger Queso Dip

"Everyone seems to love this dip!"

No game day is complete without queso, and Sherry Monfils's Bacon Cheeseburger Queso Dip is a nice way to kick-up queso. The addition of bacon is great and adds some smokiness. The tomatoes with chili add a bit of heat, but not too much. Serve this is a super easy party dip with thick tortilla chips and it'll be a winner.

See step-by-step photos of Sherry's recipe plus thousands more from home cooks nationwide at: www.justapinch.com/quesodip

Kidder part-time officers to see pay increase

by Jeanine Hofbauer

Reevaluating part-time officer pay rates during the January 21 Kidder Township meeting resulted in a 70¢ hourly increase for the force. Chief Matthew Kuzma reported surrounding areas pay up to $18 per hour. Supervisor Thomas LaFond explained population played a part in proposing the $16 per hour rate.

Philip Shedaker was appointed the department's newest part-time officer to fill in the void left by Brian Dale-sandro's resignation. In December, Michael Chica was appointed as a full-time police officer.

An effort to save money resulted in supervisors admitting the company hired to perform garbage bill bulk mailing "goofed it up." With many residents left holding the bag on when to send payments, it was agreed a March 15 extension was in order.

White Haven Area Library's request for donation was met with supervisors uncertain over budget designation. Former supervisor Larry Polansky noted a $250 donation was discussed, "based on the large population in the Golden Oaks area who use that library." A 3-2 vote with Thomas Bradley and newly elected supervisor Bruce Berger opposed approved the donation.

Bradley remains chairperson, elected at the January 4 reorganization, with LaFond vice-chair, as well as police chair. Berger was named Roadmaster.

Supervisors Bradley, LaFond, Berger, Frank Pieri and Barbara Franzosa,

business manager Lisa Klem, secretary/treasurer Suzanne Brooks, solicitor Dan Miscavige and approximately 30 members of the public attended.

Kidder Township's next meeting is at 7 p.m. February 18 at the Township Municipal Building on Lake Avenue in Lake Harmony.

Veterans Corner by John Kearns

Our FREEDOM is FREE IF YOU HAVE A LICENSE

Dealing with the snow is difficult, so Iraq War veteran Justin Anderson converted his tracked wheelchair for double duty. By adding a plow and a lever control, he is able to clear snow with ease. Not only does this disabled veteran use it to clear his driveway, he also helps by clearing the sidewalks for his neighbors. This man is a hero who bravely served our country, and is now a good-Samaritan who makes life easier for his neighbors and safer for the kids.

But that's what veterans do, find a way to overcome and remain productive, right? No, he is not licensed and does not have a permit. So against public outcry, bureaucrats are looking into the legality of the community service of this vet—who has had a leg amputated and is fighting brain cancer. One official remarked his snow clearing is not needed—there are plenty of kids with snow shovels looking for work.

What has happened to all the kids who took advantage of the snow to earn money? They are not there anymore, but don't blame the kids. In America now, to pursue even a very small business, you must have filled out the proper form and been extorted by the proper bureaucrat and paid your share.

Here is a story from nearby: two high school seniors went door-to-door offering snow shoveling services because school was closed and instead playing XBOX they decided to earn some money. Out in the storm the neighborhood's people were glad to see them, especially the elderly and they were doing great. Then along came the police, who put an end to the "unapproved business." The cost for these 17 year olds to shovel your driveway in that town is a license of $450. Freedom is not free, and enterprising youth cannot work. Neighborhoods who support and appreciate kids helping in the storm do not matter. Police hate to enforce oppressive laws like these, but have to. So it is easy to blame the "LAZY" kids, not the excessive government and the political parasites.

The parasites are already looking to require the veteran to have lights and licensing on his snow plow wheelchair against the wishes of the people who rally around him, as well as kids who believe in the American way.

When will big Government be too big? When will the wishes of "we the people" matter? When will the common good outweigh the need for political hacks to get his name on another new law we don't need? All these questions—all hard to answer, but one thing for sure is that nothing will happen until those elected by us again realize they are there not for personal gain, not for bloated pay checks, pensions, and perks. They should be there to serve and represent us who pulled that voting lever and put them there.

So long as they can tell us what we should like, what we should eat (etc.), we are doomed. When they have to spend billions of dollars to convince us why they need a second term instead showing us their value during their first, we are doomed to serve them.

Finally, when those we elect convince us "it's the kids' fault for not working," it is really time to start listening closer. The veteran and kids should be applauded and encouraged, not threatened and discouraged—but that's how they want us as citizens, uninformed and unaware. Keep quiet so the Government will take care of you.

We as citizens should vote to make a few new laws about voting. Here's one idea, post this message in halls with voting stations: "CAUTION, politicians can be hazardous to your rights and freedom, read about them carefully before re-electing."

The veteran above proves that like water, our American spirit can only be held back before so long, we will find a way.

Happy New Year from WH Lions Club

Happy New Year from the White Haven Lions Club - we are very much looking forward to continuing in 2016 with a tradition of more than 75 years of service to our local community.

Our Club recently reviewed the list of causes we supported in 2015, including, but not limited to: the White Haven Food Pantry, White Haven Community Library, two local domestic violence shelters, Homeless Veterans, White Haven and Dennison Township Fire Departments, White Haven Ambulance Association, White Haven Summer Recreation Program, American Cancer Society, Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, local Giving Tree and Holiday Meal Programs, SPCA, White Haven Sports Association, and more.

We provide at least two $1,000 Scholarships each year, and most years we are able to supplement those with additional scholarships.

As situations arise, we also provide donations to individuals and families seeking help with such needs as disaster relief, eyeglass purchase, medical expenses, home heating, and more. Each year we sponsor the Halloween Parade, which is an event with a long tradition of bringing our community together for a great day of fun and enjoyment.

The important work of the White Haven Lions is only made possible by our group of dedicated Lions and Volunteers, as well as the continued generosity of you, the many selfless individuals and businesses in our community who support these efforts. You make a true impact in terms of helping those in need. Please accept our most sincere thanks for all you have done and continue to do to make a difference.

To ensure continued success in its mission, the White Haven Lions Club could really use the help of additional members and volunteers. We work hard, with each member of volunteer contributing what they can. However, we also enjoy a good deal of comradery and have a lot of fun. We take this opportunity to invite interested persons to come out and see what we're all about.

Those with potential interest in Lions membership, or simply helping out here and there as a Volunteer, are invited to call Joe Quinn at 570-977-4368, or talk to any Lion. We look forward to hearing from you.

Art Spotlight

by Stephanie Grega

Through its movement and motion, dancing is an art which transcends both the dancer and the audience into another world- one that contains a sense of belonging and strong emotion. At the Hafila and Choreo Debut for the Baretoes Belly Dancers, artist Abby Myers belly danced to a rhythmic Indian beat, as the electrically energetic audience of the Baretoes Yoga Studio of Tamaqua clapped along to the rhythm.

Myers serves as an advocate for this art form, which many people have stigmatized over the years as unwholesome. "The stigma has to do with historical connotations, particularly from the 19th and 20th centuries, which have marred this beautiful dance. What is unknown to many outside the belly dance world, is that there are so many different styles of belly dance. For example, there is Egyptian, Turkish, American Cabaret, Folkloric, and my personal favorites- the tribal styles and tribal fusion. Each style has its own unique history and cultural influences," said Abby.

She was drawn to the art since childhood, after trying out belly dance workouts she found on TV. "Six years ago, I decided to take it more seriously, and haven't stopped since. I was really lucky to be living in State College at the time, where there is a large belly dance community...I could never sit still, and was always dancing around the house since I was a kid. Belly dancing lets me burn energy, yet doesn't feel like exercise. I find myself with fitness goals related to my dance practice, so I'm continually training -but without the drudgery of normal exercise. I can also get technical with it, by studying the mechanics of belly dance movement," continued Myers.

The artist likes to use dancing as a way to creatively express different parts of herself that she wouldn't otherwise have an opportunity to express in everyday life. She enjoys bringing her love of jewelry, costume design/creation, and makeup artistry into the mix. Abby was a member of the Weatherly Area High School Band, and has always loved music and music theory. Belly dancing gives her a change to experiment with different music styles and exotic time signatures.

She makes jewelry and costume pieces for the troop's performances. "Anything tribal or primitive appeals to me, so I love using natural objects for my jewelry such as coffee beans, stones, twigs, and bones. I also love finding and using random bits and baubles I find in old drawers, flea markets, or the ground. Other random places I draw inspiration from are Alphonse Mucha, Star Trek, and old movies/ TV (while denoting the artistic liberties of the time)."

"I started making jewelry more in high school as a result of two things- I didn't have money to buy jewelry and I didn't like the items sold in stores. Most of it felt empty, and didn't express my soul." Today, she loves to scour discount racks of costume jewelry to find pieces to break apart and turn into other creations.

Since she works in a very technical science field, she finds the creativity of art very balancing.

"I enjoy viewing and creating art as a way to relax. I feel complete as a person when I have both art and science in my life. I've been interested in art as long as I can remember. My mom is an artist, and her and my grandpa were always encouraging creativity in me since childhood. I enjoy thinking abstractly, and the continual process of figuring out how I communicate or bring an abstract idea into the physical dimension."

Abby says her mother constantly comments on how belly dancing is the one and only thing she has never grown tired or bored of. "It really is impossible to get bored with this art form, whether you are dancing, crafting, or researching its rich history. This art form is so rich, and encompasses everything I love, including dancing, crafting, music, history, and communication," concluded Myers.

Seth's Sightings by Seth Isenberg

Thoughts while snow shoveling:

At the start when going out to face fully covered sidewalks and driveway, "This isn't too heavy. At least it's light and fluffy." After about 20 minutes, this becomes, "Gee, have I cleared that little?" After about a half hour, "I can do this," followed by "That'll do; I'll widen it later."

I did get paths done on the sidewalks, and the driveway open to get the truck out. I didn't finish the driveway, or fully clear the snows around the office. As of today – deadline day for this newspaper – I still have snow in the middle of the office sidewalk, but have widened the walking paths. Our neighbor has not connected a path through the snows on the sidewalks on their lot, so the block above us is only good for a walk in the street.

Local crews did a pretty good job plowing the roads, even in the areas of the big snows. In the south part of our readers area, some people were dealing with over two feet of snow.

We lost a few locals with the big snow, shoveling and from crashes. Not all is bright and white.

On Sunday Ruth and I, after doing more digging out from Saturday's storm, we had to take a drive to look at our snow-blanketed area. The little delicate frostings of snowfalls of the previous weeks are now buried with snowfalls from six inches to over a foot hereabouts. We thought that if we timed our ride to listen to the Patriots-Broncos playoff game that we could also get our dog, Chess, out for a walk. My timing allowed us to reach the center of Hickory Run State Park by halftime, and we chose to walk on the road to Boulder Field. In the wintertime this road is closed to be enjoyed by snowmobilers in weather like this. I counted on the fact that snowmobilers would have packed the snow for us to walk upon.

There was lots of deep snow in the woods and along the edges where the snowmobiles did not track, so Chess spent her time bounding through it. She spotted a fallen branch, and picked it up and brought it back to show me, then went bouncing off. We played stick all the way up the hill, and then all the way back to the truck. We climbed the hill and enjoyed a beautiful view through the trees of the setting sun amidst light clouds.

The snow defined last week. This weeks looks better, with a bonus of local Penguins hockey in the mix including a game Saturday night.

I'm upset about the Patriots' loss—there were two chances for them to win it, and they wouldn't kick a field goal. So I'm at the end of my fan rope a bit. I guess I'm going to root for Carolina in the Super Bowl – so I'll keep the fan fires burning a bit longer.

I keep tabs on UConn women's basketball – now with the third longest win streak in NCAA history. Odd thing about this is that the longest and second longest streaks are also the Huskies' from past groups of players. That's a tribute to the common thread, their coach, Geno Auriemma. Also on the "cool" side are the candidates for the Olympic basketball team, with lots of former Huskies and one current one, the team's awesome center, Brianna Stewart. Congrats to all.

Penn State's men's hockey team is doing well this year. They are doing great as a new program, winning against some of the nation's most powerful hockey programs. The future is bright for them.

This Friday night, we will be at the Jeff Dunham performance enjoying his comedy. Saturday eve we'll be cheering the Penguins. On Sunday afternoon, we plan to go to the 40 Story Radio Tower show in Jim Thorpe. The group of locals who put this monthly performance on really gets energized from the support of an audience. Tickets are only $10 – the doors open at 3:30 p.m. and the show starts at 4. Local guitar maestro Craig Thatcher with his electric violinist sidekick Nyke Van Wyke is the featured musical act, so this month's edition will be extra good. See you there?

Ritsick surpasses Madl as all-time scoring leader at Crestwood

by Steve Stallone, Sports Editor
When Crestwood senior Maddie Ritsick became the school's all-time leading scorer in girls basketball last Thursday, it was a milestone that even the two-time all-state selection had to stop and say "wow" to. Ritsick didn't pass just anybody when she scored her 1,487th point on a 3-point field goal against Tunkhannock. She moved past Diane Madl, who not only was the all-time leader in points, but one of Crestwood's most decorated athletes ever.

A three sport standout in high school, Madl was the biggest star to emerge from the Comets field hockey program back in the mid-1980s. The 1985 graduate went on to an All-American field hockey career at UConn and played for the United States in the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta. "I knew she was an Olympic field hockey player and basketball was her second sport, but she was one of the great athletes in the history of our school," Ritsick said about Madl, who just happens to be a family friend. Madl and Maddie's mother are close friends, and were in contact with each other over the weekend.

"She called my mom and congratulated me," Ritsick said. "It really didn't hit me yet, but (30 years) is such a big deal, and she was such a great player. It's cool to have your name out there with hers." Ritsick entered the game at Tunkhannock needing 13 points to tie Madl, and was not aware that she had done it when she knocked down a 3-pointer. "I don't keep track of my numbers during a game, but when coach called time out to stop the game, it was a moment of excitement," she said. "My teammates gave me high-fives and I was really excited." Ritsick will be recognized formally at an upcoming home game, and said she hopes to keep the record "for a while."

The fact that Ritsick was able to get the record was in itself remarkable. She accomplished the feat while still working her way back from ACL and MCL surgery after suffering a serious knee injury just 11 months ago during Crestwood's playoff win over Lake-Lehman. But she has come back with a vengeance. After rehabbing the knee for nine long months, she was back on the court for the Lady Comets' first practice and started on opening night, scoring 22 points and leading her team to a win over Meyers.

"It was my goal to be back by the beginning of the season, so I made that," she said. "By the one-year point, I'm hoping to be 100 percent, and hopefully a little before that." While she admittedly isn't back to 100 percent yet, she is getting close. She has scored at least 22 points in each of the Lady Comets' last six games, leading to four wins and keeping them within striking distance of the Wyoming Valley Conference leaders.

In fact, the Lady Comets have been one of the WVC's surprise teams this season, winning seven of their last 10 games overall after a 1-5 start. The return to form of Ritsick has been a big part of it. She is averaging an area-best 21.3 points per game, reaching double-digits in rebounds, knocking down shots from the outside (24 3-pointers) and is once again making a killing at the free throw line. She has been to the line a whopping 163 times, making 121 (74 percent).

Crestwood Girls Basketball

Crestwood has also benefitted by strong play from the likes of Julia Makowski, Kate Snipas, Sara Hopkins, Marlee Dillon, Abbie Macko and Emily Shiplett. Makowski (6.8 ppg) has caught fire in recent weeks, reaching double figures in three of her last four games while averaging better than nine points per game in conference play. Snipas (7.6 ppg) has 23 3-pointers.

The Lady Comets cooled off a red-hot Dallas team (51-38) and handled Berwick (65-50) during WVC first-half play, and took both Pittston Area and Valley West to the wire before losing by four and six points, respectively.

Although at 5-3 they trail conference leaders Hazleton Area (7-1) and Pittston Area (7-1), the Lady Comets can certainly have a say in who wins it. They still have games remaining with both teams, as well as Valley West (6-2). And, at 8-8 overall, they can also improve on their seeding for the upcoming District 2 Class 3A playoffs. After all, a rugged early-season schedule and the rigors of WVC play have prepared them for what could be an extended postseason stay.

"I think we're going to make a great showing in the second half of the season," Ritsick predicted, saying team goals have always been at the forefront of her thinking. "I wasn't worried about individual statistics, I was more worried about the team and what we could accomplish together. Making a run in the playoffs would be more important than any record."

The Lady Comets continued that push on Monday, beating Coughlin 61-25 behind Ritsick's game-high 22 points that included three triples and a 7-for-7 showing at the free throw line. Snipas chipped in 11 points, one of 10 Lady Comets to reach the scoring column.

Crestwood will be at Pittston Area on Thursday, and return home to host Hazleton Area next Monday. CRESTWOOD (61) Ritsick 6 7-7 22, Snipas 4 0-0 11, Dillon 3 0-0 6, Makowski 2 0-2 5, Shipton 2 0-0 4,

Weatherly Swimming

Sirkot places second in swim meet

Last Thursday, the Schuylkill League's independent schools gathered at Pottsville for the inaugural Schuylkill Independent Invitational swim meet. Independent swimmers from Weatherly, Marian, Halifax, Millersburg and Nativity competed in the event, with a chance to post qualifying times for the upcoming league and district competitions. Pottsville swimmers also swam to fill lanes and provide competition.

Marian freshman Danny Berlitz won the 200 freestyle in 1:47.66, and then took the 100 breaststroke in 1:03.18, seven seconds faster than second-place finisher Jacob Sirkot of Weatherly.

Berlitz was coming off a record-setting performance at his Schuylkill League swim debut on Jan. 12, when he broke Tamaqua's pool record in the 500 freestyle.

Schuylkill League independent swimmers are required to go to two dual meets per season to compete in the league meet, which is scheduled for Saturday, February 13, at 11 a.m. back in Pottsville.
