Monroe County Head Start receives Rotary Global Grant

The Monroe County Head Start program has been named the recipient of a Rotary International Global Grant to fund virtual classrooms for these Monroe County Pre-K children impacted by Covid-19. The $33,750 grant will be used to ensure Kindergarten readiness of pre-school age children enrolled in Head Start who, because of school closures, have not received formal programming since the outbreak of the Pandemic in March.

Rotary International is a service organization created over 110 years ago to bring together business and professional leaders to further humanitarian service, fight disease, provide clean water and sanitation, promote peace and support education around the world. The goal of its 1.2 million members and 35,000 clubs is to see a world where people unite and take action to solve real problems to create lasting change.

David Super, spokesperson for the Stroudsburg Rotary, lead sponsor of the grant application, said, “A coalition of our Monroe County Rotary Clubs joined together to address the problems Head Start is facing because of Covid-19. Most in-person programs have been shuttered because of the outbreak. As a result, these Monroe County Pre-K children who live in poverty have not received the in-person education necessary to demonstrate by school district Kindergarten assessments, a high readiness for educational success.” He continues, “We met with Tim Lee, the Executive Director of Pocono Services for Families and Children (PSFC), which administrators our County Head Start Program, to find out how this gap could be bridged, and came up with this solution and the funding necessary to get it launched.”

What is unique to this type of Global Grant is they are not normally awarded within the United States. Super continues, “We partnered with a Canadian Rotary chapter to apply for this International Program. Traditionally, our monies raised for international projects helps in countries around the world. Given the significant impact the Pandemic has had in Monroe County, we opted to fund a program within our County.”

Joining together to make the project possible were the Rotary Clubs of The Stroudsburgs, Blakeslee, Mount Pocono, Meeting to present the Global Grant are, from left, Mitchell Marcus Stacy Keeler, and Vern Moyer from Mount Pocono Rotary; Karen DeMatteo from Rotary of The Stroudsburg, Annie Messina from Pocono Mountains Rotary, Jim Mannello from West End Rotary; Tim Lee, Executive Director of Pocono Services for Families and Children; Janice Miller-Lions from Blakeslee Rotary; Dave Super from Rotary of The Stroudsburgs; H. John Davis from Mount Pocono Rotary; Jim Becker from Rotary of The Stroudsburgs; Nereida Santiago from Mount Pocono Rotary; and Karen Bastidas from Rotary of the Stroudsburgs.

Pocono Mountains, and West End, and Rotary District 7410.

The Virtual Classrooms program will engage children through on-line learning using laptops loaded with specially designed software that focuses on skills necessary to enter Kindergarten. There is currently no outlet for children not yet enrolled in public schools to access this type of service. In addition to the children, virtual classroom learning will also include adult programming on health education, parental skill developments, Bridges Out of Poverty curriculum, and computer skills. Through Head Start and Global Grant funding, everything families will need to learn remotely and receive basic education and literacy will be provided.

PSFC is a non-profit organization that advocates on behalf of economically challenged Monroe County families by being a responsive, thriving organization that leads the charge for training and advocacy. Their goal is to collectively improve the future for children, families and communities.

Super concludes, “We are in the process of securing the equipment for this new program and expect to impact 75 families in need in Monroe County. The launch of this new ongoing initiative will continue to help families with pre-school children access the equipment they need to advance their literacy and prepare them for school. Thanks to an International Rotary Grant, PSFC will manage the equipment and programming to create a sustainable learning opportunity for Monroe County families and is a shining example of how our organization not only impacts lives internationally but also here in our community.”

For program information and assistance with participation, residents can call Monroe County Head Start at 570-421-2676 or go to their website at psfc.org.

The composition of Monroe County is diverse. Our neighbors are Republican and Democrat, black, brown, and white. Our county population is 167,000 strong. That is 167,000 life stories. 167,000 individuals with hopes and dreams. 167,000 affected by the impact of COVID-19, cancers, racial inequity, drug misuse and many other horrible factors. While other communities focus on the "divides", we are asking Monroe County to respond, respectfully. There is plenty of strife in the world. The NAACP, Pocono Mountains United Way, and local and state police departments request unification before and after the presidential election.

Former President George W. Bush recently stated "We're human beings, equally vulnerable and equally wonderful in the sight of God. We rise or fall together. And we're determined to rise." We agree.

Recently, the NAACP, United Way, and police departments began meeting to focus on the strengths of Monroe County and how best to serve and protect. This plan includes cultural competency trainings and a commitment to improve communications between law enforcement and the community. The goal is for law enforcement to be seen as a resource for all and for our county to demonstrate the principles of fairness, honor, and community.

These organizations recognize that tension and emotions are connected with the upcoming election. The position of this statement is that civil unrest, disorder, and violence are not the attributes of a healthy Monroe County. Voting is important. Political election of public servants is critical. These activities should elicit emotion. But these emotions should be expressed, peacefully and respectfully.

Collectively, we stand for UNITY. We believe in treating everyone with DIGNITY. We think that RESPECT is possible despite disagreement. We value EQUALITY where no one feels like an "other". We pursue JUSTICE for all while opposing discrimination and mistreatment of some.

Remember the lessons from childhood. Be a gracious winner. Don't gloat. If your candidate loses, keep your composure. Advocate. Volunteer. Get involved for the next election.

Monroe County, we are counting on you to be the example for the rest of the state and country.

Sincerely,

Fraud alert

Veterans Scams

Their time in service to protect our country is over. Now it's our turn to protect our veterans from scams. Veterans deserve our gratefulness, our respect and praise.

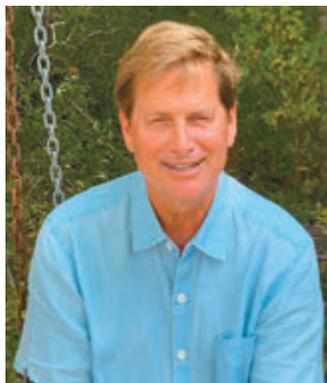

Here's what they don't deserve: attempts to take advantage of their service. Yet every day, scammers attempt to defraud our veterans of their hard-earned benefits, steal their identity, or take their savings. These frauds include seeking donations for fake charities claiming to serve our nation's veterans (always research before giving); targeting veterans with fake employment opportunities (it's a scam if you have to pay to get the job or provide sensitive personal information); and offers of free cash from little-known government grant programs (the federal government doesn't hand out grants to individuals).

Together, we can fight back and take one small step to repay our veterans for their service and sacrifices.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Visit the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork or call the AARP Fraud Watch Network Helpline at 1-877-908-3360 to report a scam or get help if you've fallen victim.

ALTERNATIVE BALLOT NOTICE

Re: Implementation of the Federal Voting Accessibility for the Elderly and Handicapped Act (VAA)

The General Election is November 3, 2020. In the past the staff and concerned citizens of Monroe County, under the auspices of the Monroe County Board of Commissioners, have spent extensive time in trying to make all polling places in Monroe County accessible to the elderly and the electors with disabilities. If you are assigned to an inaccessible polling site, contact the Monroe County Bureau of Registration and Elections at (570) 517-3165 on how to receive an alternative ballot.

Pursuant to P.L. 98-435, a telecommunication device (TDD) must be provided so people who are hearing/speech impaired can receive election information. This will be accomplished again this year through the AT&T relay system. TDD users may utilize this service by calling 1-800-654-5984 and telling the communications assistant they want to speak to the Bureau of Commissions, Elections and Legislation at (717) 787-5280. AT&T will then relay the conversation to the bureau.

This notice is published according to the Federal Voting Accessibility for the Elderly and Handicapped Act (P.L. 98-435) and the term "accessible" is used in conjunction with this act not the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Monroe County EMS providers recognized at Virtual Hero event

Lehigh Valley Health Network (LVHN)–Pocono Foundation, along with Lehigh Valley Hospital (LVH)–Pocono, recognized the extraordinary work to care for the community by local Emergency Medical Service (EMS) providers during the LVHN–Pocono Foundation’s 4th annual EMS Hero Event, held virtually for the first time on YouTube Live on September 24.

The event honors and recognizes the outstanding service to our community by the four EMS agencies serving LVH–Pocono: Bushkill EMS Emergency Corps, Pocono Mountain Regional EMS, Suburban EMS, and West End Community Ambulance Association. In addition, despite the limitations of a virtual event, the Foundation raised a record $16,600 for these local heroes. A special 50/50 raffle was also added to the event, to generate both interest and revenue, and sold more than 200 tickets. Proceeds from the event are split evenly among the four agencies and help to fund the cost of needed equipment for these providers.

The evening’s highlights included videos of four separate life-saving calls as told through the eyes of the patients and their EMS responders. These powerful and compelling videos were introduced by physician and administration leaders at LVH–Pocono and LVHN.

Because the event did not include an in-person dinner and awards ceremony, gift bags and awards were delivered to each station by the Foundation staff and dinner was delivered on the evening of the broadcast. Nearly 300 people have viewed the event online which can be seen here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wonVp5VMn6g>.

If you would like to learn more about ways you can support the Pocono Foundation, please visit: Give.LVHN.org/Pocono.

Veterans Day Parade set at Pocono Raceway

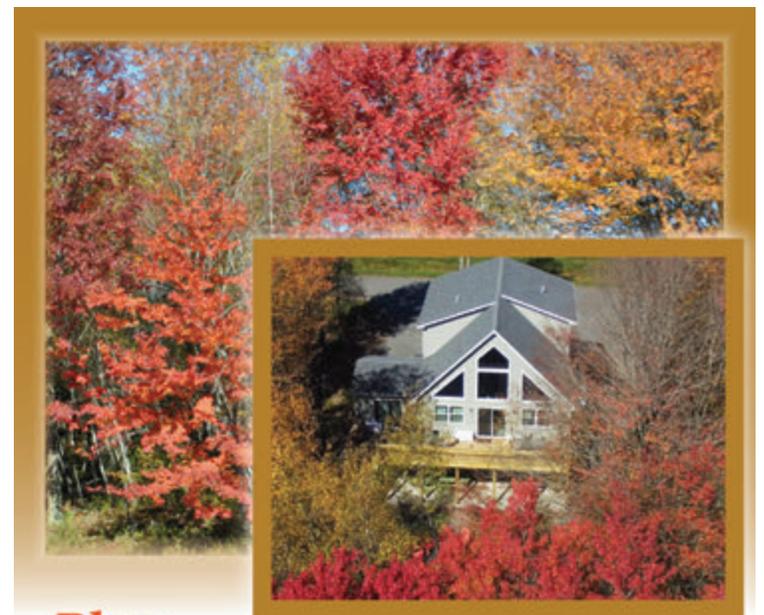

The Monroe County Veterans Association will hold a Veteran’s Day Parade at the Pocono Raceway on Sunday, November 8, beginning at 12:45 p.m. with an opening ceremony at Victory Lane by the Monroe County Joint Honor Guard. The parade will proceed from the infield, stepping off at 1 p.m.

The public may attend. Gates will open approximately one hour before the parade begins. The public will be parked along the frontstretch for the parade and asked to follow

CDC and local guidance related to COVID-19 (masks, social distancing, etc.)

The parade will feature floats, bands, and veterans organizations. A raffle and 50/50 drawing will also be conducted.

Contributions are being sought, in the form of sponsorships or donation. More information is available by contacting chairman Andy Sterner at andy.peace17@gmail.com or veterans@esu.edu or on Facebook.

Mountain Laurel Resort has big plans to upgrade

by Seth Isenberg

Owners of the Mountain Laurel Resort on Route 940 just west of the intersection of Interstate 80 and the Pennsylvania Turnpike brought a set of grand plans to October's Kidder Township Planning Commission meeting. These plans show the resort upgrading to offer extensive indoor sports options, including two sports domes to be built on the property just west of the hotel, plus an attractive village of cabins spread through the hardwood forest at the south of the hotel, around the pond and west again to meet the road to the sports domes.

Another phase of the upgrade, according to the engineers who presented the concept, is to replace the aging two-story wing of the resort with its 90 rooms, with a three story tower with 80 modern rooms. That would free up part of the property close-in to the building for more parking, and to locate one of the sports domes closer by.

Presenting these plans for an early look by members of the Planning Commission was a way to get input from everyone present, and as a way to share the vision the new ownership of the resort has for its future. With the cabins and possible crowds during sports tournaments, it was suggested by the township engineer and some board members that the plan will need a second entrance to the property. The addition of hydrants along the new roads was recommended. Some extra parking in the cabins area was suggested, especially near the units with multiple bedrooms.

The presenting team listened, and will add to their plans, then return in 2021 with revisions, and likely some paperwork ahead of the first phase of the upgrade.

Seth's Sightings by Seth Isenberg

It's raking season, a non-calendar annual event hereabouts. If we had some doubts as to when our area reached past the peak of foliage, just look around at the yards covered with leaves. The foliage at our home is now for the most part spread across the lawn.

I got a start to my raking over the weekend, and have created a pile of leaves taller than our new German short-hair pointer, Bull. He's been somewhat helpful, taking sticks that I have raked into the pile, out of the pile. He's also been peeing upon the pile, his way of helping keep the leaves from blowing away, I guess. It's a good thing it rained. I'm concerned that the wind that may come with the remnants of hurricane Zeta will blow my leaves all around again.

As a game, when Bull spent time digging around in the piles, I could gather up some leaves on my rake, then show him with them. He seemed to find this great fun.

The red maples in the back of our yard were still holding leaves ahead of the big storm. They usually hold on until late in the season. Other than those, there are a few stubborn leaves on our burning bushes, now faded to a dark red.

With more dry weather, I'll go out again with team Isenberg's K-9s for more fun, raking included. The audience really does help. Our town has a leaf vacuum, so all work gets directed to piling the leaves at the curb on the scheduled dates.

During our drives this week, we found some pockets of beautiful leaves still hanging on. The best of these was a spot on the north side of the hill into the Nescopeck valley on Route 93 (north from Interstate 80). The hardwood grove there was sheltered, and still sported brilliant yellow and stunning red leaves on many of the trees. Most everywhere else, we sighted some pale yellows of isolated late maples nearby golden browns of oaks. It's still pretty, though the days of this foliage season are few now.

November through to early April, when the trees are completely bare, are not my favorites. The hardwoods without leaves seem to usher in winter... and that cold, snow, ice and sleet can take its time coming. The next big step is this Sunday with the return of Standard Time. I prefer Daylight Savings time with its later sunsets.

This past weekend, there was a small apple festival at Hellers Orchards in Wapwallopen (on the Susquehanna River, north of Berwick). Ruth and I decided we'd take a drive there — it took less than an hour. I've written about our fondness for Stayman Winesap apples, which in our opinion are worth a drive to buy. Hellers has a grove of them, and plenty in stock to buy. Plus, the festival featured the Bissinger Family's apple dumplings stand (Bissinger's tent is one of our favorite stops at the Bloomsburg Fair). We bought one each to eat there, and took more home.

Sports this past weekend were a bit lame. The NASCAR race needed until Wednesday to get run. I'm not sure many people watched. I tuned in briefly, then checked back to see who won.

The Eagles win made Ruth happy, and here's to a win against the Cowboys, setting up a rematch with the Giants mid-month that could be meaningful. To the Jets fans... sorry, though there's a little consolation in how badly the Patriots played versus the 49ers.

Penn State lost its game one by a possibly botched field call. With Ohio State in this weekend, the Nittany Lions will need to up their game. Things should get easier for PSU the following week as Maryland comes to Happy Valley. We'll be tuned in each game.

Sightings now include some vees of geese smartly heading south ahead of the coming cold. Of note, as the countdown to hunting season has started, I've seen a bunch of good-looking bucks around our area. Ruth took a photo of a local bow hunter with the 500 lb. bear he recently shot... It filled the back of his pickup. There's going to be a lot of bear stew at his house through the winter. He plans to dress the hide, and mount the bear among his trophies.

On Hallowe'en Saturday, Ruth and I are helping to judge a pet costume parade on White Haven's Main Street, starting in front of the White Haven Diner just after 4. Everybody who comes gets a gift. Come by and say hello. Also, check out some of the area's really outstanding Halloween decorated yards.

Ruth and I are now looking for outdoor events within two hours drive. There's little scheduled nearby, so we will cast our net further out. Museum visits will resume, too, as the weather drives us back inside. We'll be back writing about those.

On November 3, vote — unless you already mailed a vote in. Ruth and I will vote in person. I can only hope that after such an election, we can all come together again.

And — please go out to shop and eat at (or get takeout from) local businesses. They need all of our support right now.

EPA’s Responsible Appliance Disposal Program honors PPL Electric Utilities for 2019 recycling program

PPL Electric Utilities’ appliance recycling efforts in 2019 recently earned it high honors in the U.S. EPA’s Responsible Appliance Disposal (RAD) Program.

PPL received a Champions Award for having one of the highest rates of insulation foam recovery in the RAD Program last year. Foam contains substances that are potent greenhouse gases that may, depending on the age of the unit, deplete the ozone layer.

“Our RAD partners have increased appliance recycling by employing best environmental practices, which reduces emissions, saves energy and builds strong partnerships in our communities,” said Anne

Austin, Principal Deputy Assistant Administrator for EPA’s Office of Air and Radiation. PPL was one of 14 companies across the country that received awards for outstanding program achievements in appliance recycling, according to the EPA.

Since joining the RAD program in 2017, PPL has recycled nearly 40,000 refrigerant-containing appliances, which in greenhouse gas terms is the equivalent of taking more than 61,000 vehicles off the road for a year. More than 138,000 appliances have been recycled since PPL started its appliance recycling program more than a decade ago.

“This honor reflects how much PPL and its customers believe in and support a cleaner, greener planet through appliance recycling,” said Mary Ann Kelly-Merenda, program manager for PPL’s residential energy efficiency programs. “We’re proud to partner with our customers and other stakeholders.”

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, PPL’s appliance recycling program is currently suspended. However, customers can choose to be added to a waitlist and will be contacted once the program resumes. To be placed on the waitlist or for any questions, please contact customer service at 1-877-486-9204 between 8 a.m. – 6 p.m.

To learn more about PPL’s appliance recycling program, and keep current on any changes, visit ppllectric.com/recycle. To learn more about the federal government’s RAD Program, visit: epa.gov/rad.

Police Beat

by Seth Isenberg

10-18, Pocono Mountain Regional Police officers arrested a 41 y/o Coolbaugh Twp. man on 30 counts of sexual abuse of children, 25 counts of invasion of privacy, 10 counts of unlawful contact with a minor, and a bunch of other counts. James Morris, Jr. was charged after a complaint about his photographing girls up their skirts. PMRPD Detectives obtained a search warrant for Morris' home where they seized computer tablets and storage media, cell phones, plus some pot and paraphernalia. On the devices, police found videos including the up skirt recordings. Four children and two adults have been identified as victims. On 10-26, Morris was arrested and taken to the Monroe County jail, with bail set at $50,000 by District Judge Travagline. Additional court dates are to be scheduled.

10-22 at 2:20 p.m., PMRPD responded to the Oak View apartments off Oak Street in Mt. Pocono due to a shots fired report. Officers arrived and found several witnesses to the shooting, and some evidence of a shooting. Witnesses said that two groups of people were involved in some kind of fight. One person pulled out a handgun and fired shots at people in the group who weren't with him. Everyone fled on foot and in vehicles. PMRPD's criminal investigators interviewed witnesses, and some people involved in the fight. They were able to identify the shooter as Ivan Watts, 18, of Oak View. He was located and arrested. Other people involved in the incident will be located and arrested as well. Watts is charged with 4 counts of attempted homicide, 4 counts of aggravated assault, 4 counts of simple assault, 4 counts of reckless endangering, and more. He was arraigned before the on duty Judge and sent to the county jail.

In other reports, PA State Police – Fern Ridge responded to a Cummings Lane, Penn Forest Twp. home at 1:47 p.m. on 10-18 due to a report that someone had broken the front window at the home. The arriving Trooper learned from the victim that a 36 y/o man had broken the window. He will be charged with criminal mischief.

It was a quiet period for crashes, but that will change. We now have leaves down to make roads slippery, PLUS some nights below freezing, PLUS, the switch to Standard Time so the sun sets at commuter times and in general, it's darker when traffic is heavier.

PSP-F is investigating a burglary in a bank-owned home on Evergreen Hollow Road in Effort, discovered on 10-25. Stolen were a cast iron wood stove worth about $350, and $500 worth of light fixtures.

A Canadensis man reported that someone stole his Load Rite Trailer and a red Western snow plow – discovered the morning of 10-16. The trailer is black, with two dented wheel fenders. Anyone with information is asked to call PSP-F at 570 646-2271.

10-7, a Penn Forest Twp. man, 64, was convinced to pay for an ATV advertised on Facebook Marketplace via E-Bay gift cards – $1,600 of them. He provided the card numbers, and then...the ATV did not show up. He contacted PSP-F; they are investigating.

The Pocono Plateau is not HIGH enough for some

A traffic stop on Interstate 80 west at 3:19 p.m. on 9-23 led to a search after "multiple indicators of criminal activity were present." A consent for a search was denied, so the PSP K-9 unit was called in. The dog did an exterior search and alerted. When police conducted a probable cause search, some personal pot and drug paraphernalia was found. The two men in the car, 41 and 48, were arrested on drug possession charges, and later released with a court date scheduled before District Judge Joseph Homanko in Weatherly.

A day earlier, an East Stroudsburg driver, 31, also refused a consent to search during a stop on I-80 west in Tobyhanna Twp. She also waited for the K-9 officer. The dog alerted, a probable cause search was done, and police found a personal quantity of heroin, and paraphernalia. She's charged with drug possession, and has a court date before District Judge Richard Claypool.

Playing college sports in 2020? Here's what I think

by Anna Newman

How would you feel if your season was taken away from you in a blink of an eye? Not having any control over what is going on. Having your voice not heard. It's happening, and athletes worldwide have been (and many still are) in shock. Sports seasons have been cut short and pushed back due to COVID-19. There's more, too. How would you feel during a pandemic—returning to campus while having a season to play? How would you feel, worrying constantly about your health while attending class and engaging in workouts?

In response, the NCAA announced regulations giving athletes a choice. Because of COVID-19, student-athletes have an opt-out alternative. If student-athletes take it, then schools are required to honor scholarship commitments. Having that option gives athletes the ability to focus on their health. But that choice has implications. If too many student-athletes in a sport choose to opt-out, a season could be on the brink or ended. On the other hand, research isn't available yet regarding the long-term effects of COVID-19. What we do know is this: the disease will put you out for two weeks and cardiologists are warning about the possibility of serious heart issues afterward.

The prospect scares me as an athlete. Most athletes are in great shape - never thinking that something like that could happen. Would you risk your health for one season? On the other hand, there's a stark alternative - no college sports until COVID-19 passes - and the financial implications that come with it. For revenue-generating sports, playing games yields money. And there's the issue of fans attending games. Fans equal money. No fans equal no gate receipts. Athletes want their fans in the stands, of course, but fans attending games can increase the likelihood of virus-spread. And for athletes, playing could bring a spike in COVID cases.

And what about the schools? They need students to generate tuition dollars and other forms of revenue. The main issue for schools is whether to have students on campus or go primarily (if not exclusively) online. Some schools have switched back and forth based on COVID-19 spread, while others have closed for good. MacMurray College and Franklin University are two.

Major universities have been affected, too, having to tighten athletic spending, including cutting sports teams to stay in the black. Stanford cut one-third of its men's and women's sports, including several Olympic sports. The University of Kentucky, like many others, announced significant declines in athletic revenues. In UK's case, it's about $70 million. And no small matter for many schools is the revenue lost from canceling basketball's March Madness 2020.

But, for me, I come back to the student-athlete. According to the NCAA, there are nearly a half-million student-athletes enrolled at America's colleges and universities. What's best for them?

As much as I and many others would like to start the season and resume regular college sports action, doing that isn't right. There's a bigger challenge before us. With no idea of the path ahead in terms of personal health and our country's public health, we need to do what we can—all of us—to prevent future cases and halt the spread of this deadly disease.

But here's the thing: the decision-makers who'll make the call aren't student-athletes. There are not the ones putting their health on the line to play a sport. For me, that makes the right call pretty clear.

Anna Newman plays point guard for the University of Evansville women's basketball team. She wrote this article for The Sports Column.

Senate approves bills to strengthen mental health and substance use disorder coverage in Pennsylvania

The State Senate approved legislation recently to ensure that mental health and substance use disorders receive the same level of care as other health issues, according to Senator Mario Scavello.

Senator Scavello chairs the Senate Banking and Insurance Committee, which approved the bills last month.

House Bill 1696 and House Bill 1439 would strengthen enforcement of the federal Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 by ensuring insurance plans provide mental health care that is similar to coverage for other diseases and illnesses. The bills also require that insurers annually attest to the steps they have taken to comply with the law.

The current system of enforcement relies on addressing complaints from consumers who may not know about the law or fully understand the services that are included in their health plan. The package of bills would ensure all insurers offer customers the level of care and services that are required by law.

“This legislation solidifies the Insurance Department’s role in regulating insurer compliance with mental health parity and requires insurers to legally attest to compliance efforts and makes certain public disclosures of those efforts. It’s a second layer of accountability,” Scavello said. “Together, these bills will establish Pennsylvania as a leader in the regulation of insurer compliance with federal mental health parity.”

The measures will be sent to the governor to be signed into law.

Senate advances measures to boost broadband availability across PA

The Senate approved two bills this month to boost the availability of broadband by reducing regulatory burdens on telecommunications companies and utilizing existing infrastructure to further deploy high-speed internet, according to Senator Mario Scavello, who co-sponsored one of the bills.

Senate Bill 1112, co-sponsored by Senator Scavello, would break down barriers to broadband deployment by modernizing the Public Utility Code and requiring the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission to waive certain regulations, review regulations every three years and eliminate those that are no longer necessary or in the public interest.

Many of the regulations in the Public Utility Code were originally designed solely for telephone companies and have been in place for decades without being reviewed for relevancy. Changes in technology and in the telecommunications marketplace have made these costly regulations unnecessary.

House Bill 2438 would aid in the deployment of broadband by using infrastructure that is already in place for other uses. The bill would allow electric cooperatives to utilize existing utility poles to place fiber-optic lines if the placement does not adversely affect the value or use of the property.

Both bills would boost the state’s efforts to expand broadband in unserved and underserved areas in rural Pennsylvania.

“Since my first day as a State Representative and then a State Senator, I have made infrastructure investment, including broadband and communication networks, a top priority,” said Senator Scavello. “This technology is very important for our region, and I remain committed to improving broadband infrastructure and reducing the number of cellular ‘dead zones’ in Monroe and Northampton counties.”

Senate Bill 1112 was sent to the House for consideration. House Bill 2438 was returned to the House for concurrence on Senate amendments.
